

The Minnesota Butter Makers' and State Dairymen's association have adopted a very commendable method of judging the butter that is entered for scoring at their annual conventions. The plan is to score the butter as soon as it arrives at St. Paul, then set it aside to be rescored two weeks after the first scoring. This second testing is to determine its keeping qualities. Frequently the butter which has scored the highest has soon commenced to rapidly deteriorate in quality. The fact is that our best informed butter makers have outgrown our old methods of scoring, which was to score but once and that a few days after the butter was made. The expert butter makers have so mastered the art of ripening their cream that they are able to make butter of an extremely high flavor, so high in fact, that, like a highly flavored fruit, it has but little keeping qualities; however, it answers the purpose of winning a high score. To forestall this and to determine actual merit the butter is now set aside to be scored two weeks later, then from these two scores an average is struck to determine the proper score to be attached to each package. We are inclined to believe that this last judging is of more imporcence than the first, as two weeks fter the butter is made more nearly represents the time that the butter usually reaches the consumer.-St. Paul Farmer.

Keep Accounts With Your Cows. If farmers would open individual accounts with their cows, a great many of them would doubtless be surprised at the number of animals they are keeping merely as luxuries. It is not a off disease. It is the run-down, worn-out safe rule to go by general impressions. Those who have tried keeping accounts have found that in many cases the up your body, keep your blood rich and cows that were thought to be the money makers of the herd did not in fact yield any profit, while others which had been considered less valuable provided a good cash income.

Disputed Questions. Professor C. D. Smith, after five years' investigation of the milk question, has come to the following conclusion: First, a cow yields as rich milk when a heifer as when she is a mature cow; second, the milk is as rich the first month as it is later in the period of lactation, except during the last few weeks when she is drying up; third, there is very little difference in the season as to the quality of milk. While on pasture the milk is neither richer nor poorer than while on dry feed in winter; fourth, the milk from a herd varies little in composition from day to

A. New Dairy Bill. The dairy and food commissioners of Illinois and Ohio, in conjunction with Professor John Hamilton, the secretary of agriculture of Pennsylvania, have drawph dairy and food bill which it is proposed to introduce into congress. The convention of the association of the state dairy and food departments which met at Portland, Ore., last July delegated the above gentlemen as a committee to draft a national dairy and food bill. It will be introduced by Senator Cullom.

Water In the Barn.

If you have not already done so, it would be worth the trouble to seriously consider if it would not pay you well to put in a water system in your barn so that the cows will not have to go out on cold, stormy days in winter to drink ice cold water at an open tank.

Minnesota Butter Makers. Mr. Beecher once said that God could, doubtless, have made a better berry than the strawberry, but he never did. God could have made better butter makers than the Minnesota butter makers, but I am sure he never did .- W. W. P. McConnell.

Good Work. Time was when the average farmer and creamery man made light of the work done by agricultural colleges and experiment stations. That time has gone by, says Creamery Journal. The men in control of these institutions no longer seclude themselves in their ofmix with the farmers and tradesmen and conduct their experiments along practical business lines. In dairy work such men as Professors Curtiss and McKay in Iowa, Henry, Babcock, Farrington and Woll in Wisconsin; Erf and Glover in Illinois, Van Norman in Indiana, Haecker in Minnesota and a dozen others in different states have accomplished results of inestimable value to the dairy and agricultural interests of the whole country. Not only in methods of breeding, feeding and manufacture have they rendered valuable service, but they have invented some of the best creamery implements now largely used in modern creameries.

Butter Making In South Dakota. Dairy Commissioner Sherwood of South Dakota reports 153 creameries in operation in that state, and he estimates the output for the past year of 7,323,668 pounds at an average of 171/2 cents a pound. This gave $2,000,000 for the milk of cows contributing to the creameries, while he estimates the total value of butter sold in South Dakota, including that made at home, to be over $4,000,000.

Benefits of Dairy School.

It has become a recognized fact that at least one dairy school course is absolutely essential to the education of the successful butter maker. Only a few short years ago this idea was seldom present in the mental collection of the average creamery man. How fast conditions and the popular idea of things lo change!

How to Mend Children's Stockings. Huge holes in the stocking knees of children can be mended neatly and save the labor of darning or the actual throwing away of the otherwise good stocking. Cut the hole right out and join the two pieces left with an over and over stitch on the wrong side. This will make a seam, to be sure, but not unsightly, and they can then be utilized for second best.

and I make a specialty of raising hothouse lambs for the Chicago market. writes John A. Hill of Texas to the Breeder's Gazette. It is a very nice business for a man that likes the sheep business. I breed high grade Southdown ewes and use only registered rams. I sell my lambs at from three to four months old and ship a car of 200 head at a time. They shrink less than any other stock a man can ship. My shrinkage last year was a fraction short of five pounds, and I did not get a good run. Foolish Restrictions.

The government has dealt with the foot and mouth disease promptly and generally with good results, but it "fell down" most ridiculously when it ordered an embargo on shipments of wool from Massachusetts, one of the quarantined states, says Stockman and Farmer. But the Boston wool trade soon showed the folly of such regulations and secured a partial release after four or five days. Still any house having Massachusetts wool in store is forbidden to ship any of its stock, and "Another thing that I am reminded this is a serious hardship to some extensive dealers. All this Massachusetts wool was clipped and stored months before the outbreak of foot and mouth disease. If it does leave the loft, it will go to some manufacturer and will in no way injure anything. Such foolishness is not highly creditable to our agricultura! department.

Losses Exaggerated.

The Salt Lake City News of Feb. 26 said: "President Jesse M. Smith of the Wool Growers' association has word from various parts of Idaho about the sheep losses from snow and cold and says that reports of these losses have been much exaggerated and that in a few places only have there been any marked losses. B. F. Saunders has returned from the south country and says that the past season has been an ideal winter one in Dixie for sheep and that they have fared very well there. However, he learns that out on the western desert the sheep have not fared well and that on the Snake river desert where the ranges have been covered up by the deep snows the losses among the sheep have been considerable. One grower there has fifteen men doing nothing but skinning dead sheep for their hides.'

Wool Not the Whole Thing. While the wool crop is an element to be considered when estimating the value of the sheep it must not be thought the whole thing, and when the price of the fleece is low do not turn away from the flock or turn them off the farm simply because that product is not up to what it formerly was, says Wool Markets and Sheep. Think of the many other advantages to be derived in sticking to our white fleeced friends.
